

400 young entrepreneurs from around the world propose practical ideas to the G20 Leaders to help address the current economic crisis

400 entrepreneurs of G20 countries, gathered at the G20 Young Entrepreneurs Summit YES summit in Nice, today officially called upon G20 Leaders to place entrepreneurship at the forefront of economic renewal.

Through the voice of their Chair, Grégoire Sentilhes, the G20 YES delegations leaders reminded that entrepreneurship is a critical engine for innovation, growth and employment, in particular for the youth, both in developing and mature countries.

The G20 YES has identified more than 200 best practices successfully implemented by governments, associations and by the private sector to remove obstacles entrepreneurs are facing and strengthen the three pillars which are critical for boosting entrepreneurship:

- Fertile “ecosystems”
- Specific financing vehicles for each stage of development
- An entrepreneurial and risk taking culture.

The G20YES proposes the G20 leaders to recognize in their final statement the importance of supporting entrepreneurship as a vital solution to solve the current economic crisis.

The G20YES also proposes the G20 leaders to engage a collaborative process with the governments to develop the “Entrepreneurs’ Declaration” and a pragmatic action plan to boost entrepreneurship within and across all G20 countries.

Muhammad Yunus and José Jacques-Gustave, G2J CEO.